

National Chung Hsing University

“Keynote Speech” Course Regulations of the Doctoral Program in Data Science and Industrial Analytics

(June 10, 2020 Passed by the Program Meeting)

Article 1 The “Keynote Speech” courses are offered to elevate students and faculty members’ understanding of the research progress made by other domestic and foreign academic units.

Article 2 The faculty members are responsible for coordinating speeches and assessing students’ semester performance.

Article 3 Implementation method: Domestically or internationally renowned scholars shall be invited to deliver speeches or teach short-term courses on specific topics. Students in the Program must attend speeches organized by the Program.

Article 4 Implementation method: Each academic year is divided into two semesters. At least three speeches shall be arranged per semester, with schedules to be announced separately.

Article 5 Grading methods: As these are the required courses, students who are unable to attend must submit leave applications to their instructors as per University regulations (personal or official leaves must be pre-approved, whereas sick leaves require medical certificates issued by the hospitals/clinics). A semester grade of 90 is awarded to students with perfect attendance, and 7 points are deducted for each unapproved absence. Students’ participation in other groups’ speeches will earn them 2 extra points per speech; however, for such speeches, students must register with the instructor in advance as registrations post-speeches will not be counted.